Background

There is a growing understanding of the complex interactions between socio-cultural, biological, political and economic influences upon infant and child feeding, eating and nutrition. This international, interdisciplinary conference is organised by the Maternal and Infant Nutrition and Nurture Unit (MAINN). MAINN is a multidisciplinary unit within the School of Health at University of Central Lancashire, UK.

The conference links closely with the international journal Maternal and Child Nutrition (Wiley-Blackwell Publishing) that has its editorial office in MAINN.

The conference will explore key themes from a range of disciplinary perspectives on infant and child feeding, eating and nutrition.

Aims:

The conference aims to:

- Illuminate socio-cultural, political and economic influences upon infant and child feeding practices.
- Explore the nature of relationships within families in connection with various types of nutritive and nurturing behaviour in infancy and childhood.
- Increase understandings of breastfeeding as a biopsychosocial activity.
- Enhance understanding of the complex interactions between socio-cultural, psychological and biological factors in infant and child feeding, eating and nutrition.
- Focus on key initiatives that may impact upon practices related to infant and child feeding, eating and nutrition..

Participants:

The conference will be of interest to practitioners, academics and students across a spectrum of disciplines including:

- Anthropologists
- Biological Scientists
- Breastfeeding Support and Advocacy Groups
- Children's Centre Managers
- Dieticians
- Family Nurses
- General Practitioners
- Health Economists
